General Description

The portions of T37N R56 E. now subdivided consists in the Eastern part of high rolling ground with good agricultural soil sloping to the South East, and covered with a dense undergrowth of sagebrush and very little grass. The elevation is about 6000 feet above sea level, and it is at this altitude that the farms in the County of Elko are mostly located. In the Western part the ground is higher and more uneven gradually rising to the Mountains. In the spring of the year large