

Results of the Televised Wild Horse Adoption:

Bidders in Nevada, Colorado and West Virginia provided the most excitement in the Bureau of Land Management's third televised wild horse adoption with lively and spirited bidding, but many others "got their horse" by calling in the minimum bid.

Fifty-nine wild horses were adopted as a result of the September 7, 2001, competitive bid adoption televised over C Band Satellite from Fort Worth, Texas. Fifteen saddle horses, 15 mares and 29 geldings will be going to good homes all across the nation.

All 15 of the saddle horses gentled and trained in Riverton, Wyoming, by prison inmates were selected, with bids ranging from $125 up to $775. The average bid in this offering was $408 per horse. Successful adopters will be traveling to Rock Springs, Wyoming, to pick up their horses. A three-year old, brown gelding was the top pick by a Colorado adopter.

Bids on mares ranged from $125 to $2,500. The average bid per mare was $327. A Reno, Nevada man paid the top price for a grulla and white paint mare from the Granite Range Herd Management Area in northern Washoe County. He and his granddaughter had spotted the mare at the National Wild Horse and Burro Center at Palomino Valley where most horses in the televised adoption were being held. A three-year old, brown gelding was selected by a West Virginia adopter for $775. The average price paid for a gelding was $156, with many of the animals being chosen for $125.

Most of the successful adopters will pick up their animals at Pauls Valley, Oklahoma. However, horses selected in the adoption are also being transported to Washington, Pennsylvania; Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Cross Plains, Tennessee; Elm Creek, Nebraska; and Piney Woods, Mississippi.
