

GENERAL DESCRIPTION.

21.

This township is high, rough mountainous, rising from approximately 6000 to 10,000 ft. in elevation. In the SW. corner of the tp., is the NE. end of a small valley. The tp. is watered by several small spring branches and springs, and is covered with considerable growth of pinon pine and scrub cedars, being heavier in the southern part, the highest portions in the central being barren.

The soil is principally rocky, mixed with gravelly and rich mountain loams. The tp. is well adapted for grazing, for which purpose it is being used.

A small ranch is located in sec. 31, containing approximately 40 acres under cultivation, is watered from Bench Creek. Most of the water from said creek is piped to Wonder.
